GERMANY

MOSEL-SAAR-RUWER

90 Weingut-Pension H.J.&E. Lehmen 2006 Kerner (Mosel-Saar-Ruwer); $18. Kerner is a variety not often seen in the U.S., although it is among the top five most planted white grapes in Germany. It's a cross between Trollinger (a red grape) and Riesling, making for—in this case—a pretty, aromatic white with hints of muskmelon, tropical fruit, maybe even some red berries, all on a light frame. Long and refreshing on the finish. Imported by Wein-Bauer, Inc. Editors' Choice. —J.C.

86 Weingut-Pension H.J.&E. Lehmen 2006 Zeller Schwarze Katz Hochgewächs Riesling Lieblich (Mosel-Saar-Ruwer); $20. Hochgewächs suggests an extra level of quality, and this is good, especially for one from the oft-maligned Zeller Schwarze Katz. Starts off a bit leesy on the nose, but offers pleasant flavors of white peaches, melon and spice before coming to a slightly attenuated close. Imported by Wein-Bauer, Inc. —J.C.
